SHE FIGHTS OFF A FOOTPAD.

MRS. UPDIKE, SINGER AND TEMPERANCE WORKER.

Proves Herself "A Good One"—She Fights Her Man All Over the Sidewalk, and Finally Frees Herself and Rings a Doorbell—The Footpad Disappears.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., April 11.—Mrs. George E. Updike of Mount Vernon, a singer, temperance worker and society woman, had an encounter with a highwayman last night, who twice attempted to choke her while trying to steal a diamond brooch. The affair occurred early in the evening at the corner of Rich and Sidney avenues, on Chester Hill, not far from her home.

She had been to New York city and, not finding a cab, decided to walk to her home in Rich avenues. It was dark and lonely, and, having a premonition that some one might attempt to steal her diamond brooch, she tied her handkerchief around her throat and placed her purse in the folds of her skirt.

"When I reached the corner of Rich and Sidney avenues," said Mrs. Updike in telling the story of her experience, "I failed to see any one behind me. Suddenly a shadow appeared and, just as I turned to look to see who it was, a hand caught me by the throat and a man tried to tear away the diamond brooch. I realized in a moment that it meant life or death to me, and I determined to keep my nerve and not faint, as most women do."

"Then there followed a desperate encounter. I attempted to knock the man's hand away from my throat and mouth, so I could call for help, but I could only partly do so. The fellow appeared to be desperate, and I seemed to be growing stronger. When I threw up his arm, he again renewed his attack, but I managed to cry out: 'Let go of me! I live right here, and shall call for help!'"

"The highwayman then said: 'I know you—you don't live here.' The highwayman again tried to get the diamond brooch, and I fought with him all over the sidewalk."

"She finally freed herself and ran toward the home of Alfred D. Clinch, who lives at 161 East Sidney avenue. She had almost reached the porch when the footpad again seized her by the throat and tried to tear away the handkerchief which covered the diamond ornament."

"I continued to fight for liberty," said Mrs. Updike, "and I am glad to say I got away. The highwayman was such a desperate fellow that he even waited to see if I got a response to the doorbell of the Clinch residence. He kept muttering and swearing to himself all the time. When he saw the door open he ran away and disappeared in the darkness. I would know the man in a moment because I got a good look at his face. He was well dressed and his accent was that of a German. He had a light mustache and wore a derby hat. I will say that after it was all over I became hysterical and had to call a physician. My shoulder was lacerated and I also suffered from shock."

DYNAMITE FOR NON-UNION MEN.

Alabama Miners' Homes Blown Up and a Child Killed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 11.—The homes of William Cato, a negro, and John Alexander, a white man, both non-union miners at Blossburg, fifteen miles west of here, were blown up with dynamite today.

A 10-year-old daughter of Alexander was killed and two other children were injured. The explosive was placed on the front porch of Alexander's house.

Both houses were badly wrecked. There is a strike of miners on at Blossburg. No one is permitted to enter the area.

It's a Matter of Taste

One of the richest men in New York smokes cigars that cost him less than five cents each; not because he is economical, but because he likes them. We sell him the best imported cigars for his guests, but he won't smoke them himself.

It's a matter of taste, and it's our business to suit the taste of any man who enters one of our stores. That is why we carry such a variety of cigars—many hundred kinds in all. We'll go to a lot of effort to find just what you like in smoke, if you'll let us, and once we find out we are sure to have the cigar to fit you.

Many smokers prefer the Havana-filled, Sumatra-wrapped cigar to the clear Havana. To those smokers we say that they haven't yet known how good such a cigar may be until they have tried the

CAPT. MARRYAT CIGAR

This is one of the brands that have made us famous. We introduced it in the early days of our enterprise, at a time when a whole lot depended on how the public "took to" our offers.

It had already become popular as a ten-cent cigar, being one of the best known brands of the Harburger-Homan factory. At that time all the sizes sold for ten cents each and were famous values at that price.

It is now made exclusively for us and under our supervision it is a better cigar today than it ever was. By taking the entire product of this brand and selling direct to the smoker, we can offer it AT THESE PRICES FOR THE FOUR SIZES:

Capt. Marryat "Superiors"
A medium size, well-made Perfecto shape, banded. This is a better cigar than the average obtainable at 3 for 25c. 5c
Box of 50, $2.50

Capt. Marryat "Bouquets"
An attractively shaped, well-proportioned cigar, slightly heavier than the "Superior," banded. Ten cents never bought better. . . . 6c
Box of 50, $3.00

Capt. Marryat "Invincibles"
The long, graceful, even-burning shape, like a "Diplomatic" lengthened out. The shape and weight that cost 10c. outside United States . . 6c
Box of 25, $1.50

Capt. Marryat "Diplomatics"
A large full-weight cigar for a long satisfactory smoke. The very best domestic cigar possible to make. Usually costs 10c. straight . . 7c
Box of 50, $3.44

DAMAGES MANHATTAN MUST PAY

For Illegally Extending the Franklin Street Station.

Supreme Court Justice Gildersleeve decided yesterday that the heirs of John L. Bremer are entitled to recover damages amounting to many thousands of dollars from the Manhattan Railway Company because of the impairment of easements caused to property owners on West Broadway by the extension of the station at Franklin street. The Court finds that the company had no authority to erect an extension beyond the easterly building line of West Broadway, and that the defendant of prescriptive right through legislation and occupancy cannot be sustained. The damage for the easements amounts to $1,500, for the impairment of property rights to $12,500. The depreciation in rental is estimated at $840 a year.

J. Aspinwall Hodge, who appeared for the property owners, said yesterday that other owners would bring similar actions and recover large damages.
